Barrack Hebrew Academy Announces Merit Scholars

Bryn Mawr, PA (October 7, 2008): Fourteen members of Jack M. Barrack Hebrew Academy's senior class were named National Merit Scholars. They represent 25% of the class and were among the 50,000 high scorers nationwide, ranking among the top 5% of the over 1.4 million students taking the test.

Congratulations to National Merit Scholar semi-finalists Aaron Cogbill and Michael Lautman and to commended scholars David Carel, Ross Elkin, Reid Ginsburg, Stuart Goldberg, Joseph Levinthal, Brian Levy, Rachel Schwartz, Michael Sklaroff, Sam Sittenfield, Henry Steinberg, Jonah Stern and Daniel Weinblatt.

Barrack Hebrew Academy seniors achieve high SAT scores and are accepted to prestigious colleges throughout the United States and Israel. Over 2,400 alumni have gone on to play leading roles in all aspects of society.

Barrack Hebrew Academy provides a dynamic dual curriculum of college preparatory and Jewish studies to students in grades 6-12. The oldest pluralistic, coeducational day school in North America, Barrack welcomes students from every spectrum of Jewish observance and life. For information, contact Vivian Young, Director of Recruitment and Admissions: 610-922-2350 or vyoung@jbha.org and ask about Barrack Hebrew Academy's expanded tuition aid and merit scholarship programs.
